OUR DAILY DREAD

HI. You found the first issue of a queer magazine in a city that keeps telling us it doesn't have one. Kelowna has queer history, queer kids, queer elders, queer bakers and bureaucrats — what it hasn't had is paper that says so out loud.

This issue is about collapse: the orchards, the venues, the rent math, the bridge traffic. Not because we're doomers, but because things fall apart here on schedule, and naming the schedule is the first act of repair.

Rip out the poster. Colour the cartoon. Mail us your fury and your recipes. This thing only works if you get crumbs on it.

BEFORE THE BRIDGE

This valley did not begin in 1892, and it will not end with the condo towers. A short, rude history of what was here, what got built on top of it, and what collapsed first.

WORDS: STAFF · PHOTOS: CITY OF KELOWNA ARCHIVES

FOR thousands of years before a single orchard row was staked, this was — and remains — unceded syilx Okanagan territory. The lake fed people. The grasslands were managed with fire, on purpose, by people who understood the valley as a system rather than a view.

Then came the fur posts, the mission, and in 1892 a townsite plat with straight lines drawn over everything. The sales pitch was permanent abundance: apples forever, sun forever, growth forever.

Every boom since has made the same promise, and every bust has been treated as a surprise. Fruit prices collapsed. Sawmills closed. The 2003 firestorm ate 239 homes while the city watched from the beach.

This issue asks the impolite question: what if collapse isn't the exception here — what if it's the business model? Turn the page for the receipts.

“Every generation here gets sold the same postcard, and every generation pays the flood bill.”

— OKANAGAN HISTORIAN, PG 6 INTERVIEW

The bridge made the postcard reachable by car, and the city has been outrunning its own plumbing ever since. Water, transit, shelter: each was somebody else's problem until it wasn't.

1 syilx Okanagan Nation Alliance, on whose land this magazine is printed. 2 Sources + reading list: pg 40.

FIG. 2 — PICKING CREWS, RUTLAND BENCHES. THE APPLES WERE A PYRAMID SCHEME WITH ROOTS.

The valley sold itself twice: first as Eden, then as equity. Fruit ranchers went broke so often the packinghouses printed their own scrip; when fruit died, the pitch became retirement sun; when the retirees priced out the pickers, the pitch became lakeside lofts. Each act ended the same way — with the people who did the work living further from the water. The queer history is braided through all of it: dance halls with unofficial nights, friendship networks that doubled as housing lists, a scene that survived by being useful and quiet until it didn't have to be.

METHOD — compiled from city archives, newspaper morgues, and elders who were there. Corrections welcome and expected: pg 41.

FIG. 3 — “FOR LEASE / GREAT EXPOSURE.” THE EXPOSURE IS DOING A LOT OF WORK.

VACANCY

Six storefronts, one morning, zero people. A walking tour of what the “best downtown in Canada” looks like before the patios open — and after the leases triple.

FIGS. 4-5 — SHOT ON EXPIRED FILM, APPROPRIATELY.

FIG. 6 — SOMEBODY ALWAYS TAPES SOMETHING UP. THAT'S THE WHOLE THESIS.

Vacancy isn't emptiness — it's a waiting room. Every papered window downtown is a bet someone rich made against someone broke. The essay ends where the bets get called.

NOBODY MY AGE CAN AFFORD TO STAY

I work two jobs and split a two-bedroom with three people, and I'm the success story. My group chat is a slow-motion goodbye party: Vernon, Calgary, mom's basement in Surrey. Every viewing is forty people deep and one of them is always crying.

The city calls it a "supply challenge." From down here it looks simpler: the people who own Kelowna decided the people who run Kelowna's espresso machines should live somewhere else. I'm not asking for a condo. I'm asking to stay in the postal code where my life happens.

"Every viewing is forty people deep and one of them is always crying."

OUT AT THE PACKINGHOUSE

I came out at a bush party in Glenmore and the worst thing that happened was a guy named Tyler said “cool” and asked if I could drive him home. That's the Kelowna nobody writes about: not paradise, not hell — just a small city learning faster than its city council.

The hard part isn't hate. It's geography. When the nearest queer bar is a five-hour drive, your community is whoever shows up to the lake at golden hour. So we built our own calendar. It's on page 35. Show up.

AGE 17 · FIRE SEASON

I'VE EVACUATED TWICE AND I CAN'T VOTE YET

My childhood photos are sorted by smoke year. We packed the car in 2021 and again in 2023, and both times the adults on the radio called it unprecedented. It has precedent. I am the precedent.

Here's my ask, and it's small: stop telling my generation to be resilient while approving hillside subdivisions with one road out. Resilience is what you demand from people after you've decided not to protect them.

“I am the precedent.”

“We didn't have a bar, darling. We had basements, and we had nerve.”

Q&A / UNCUT

FORTY YEARS OF NERVE

DB: You started performing here in 1986. What's actually changed?

MD: The audience got younger and the rent got meaner. In '86 the danger was people; now the danger is landlords. I know which fight I prefer — you can charm people.

DB: Where did everyone go when the venues closed?

MD: Nowhere, sweetheart. That's the secret. We're all still here — we just meet in gymnasiums and orchards and each other's kitchens. A scene isn't an address.

DB: Advice for the seventeen-year-olds reading this?

MD: Learn to sew, learn to drive, and never let a city tell you it doesn't contain you. It does. It always did.

MD, continued: People ask if I'm bitter about the decades in basements. Bitter? Those basements had better sound systems than half the clubs I've played since. We recorded everything on cassette. Someone's nephew digitized it all last winter and I cried for a week. That's your history project right there — a drag queen's shoebox. The city archive called ME. I said darling, you're forty years late and you're paying for the shelving. They did. Progress is slow, then it's sudden, then it sends an invoice.

THE WAITLIST

Trying to find queer-competent healthcare in the Central Okanagan is a part-time job with no benefits. We phoned every clinic so you don't have to.

The numbers are placeholder-real: swap in the verified figures before print. The shape of the story won't change — everyone we interviewed described the same triangle of phone tag, referral limbo, and a highway.

HEARD ON BERNARD / VERBATIM

- "My GP is great. My GP is also in Vancouver, where I don't live."*
- "The pharmacist figured it out before any doctor did. Shout out Deb."*
- "I got my referral the same month my lease ended. Guess which one moved faster."*
- "Honestly? The group chat is the healthcare system."*

WHAT ACTUALLY HELPS / CHECKLIST
☐ The informed-consent clinic list — updated quarterly, pg 40 ☐ Pharmacists can renew more than you think — ask directly ☐ Telehealth counts. Bad wifi is still shorter than 400 km ☐ Bring a friend to appointments. Bureaucracy respects witnesses

The fix isn't mysterious: fund the clinic, train the staff, shorten the triangle. Cities that did it saw waits drop within two budget cycles. Ours pilots a task force instead. We'll print the task force's org chart when it produces one — the colouring page may get a sequel.

SHORT FICTION

THE LAKE TAKES

BY [AUTHOR] · ILLUSTRATION OPEN CALL

The realtor said the house had lake access, and it did, the way a mouth has throat access. June found the stairs behind the lilac on the second day — forty-one steps of split cedar going down to a dock that wasn't in the listing photos, because docks that old don't photograph, they testify.

Her grandmother had warned her about the lake in the language June only half-kept: it gives, but it keeps receipts. Every family on the bench had a story with the same shape — a ring, a brother, a hayfork, a name — something the water accepted and never gave back at the same size.

On the dock she found the offerings the winter had rearranged: a doll's shoe, a fishing licence from 1974, a phone in a sandwich bag, screen up, one notification still glowing like a lure. The lake was flat as a ledger. June, who had moved back for the cheap rent that no longer existed and the family that barely did, rolled her jeans and stepped down onto the first cold plank.

“Okay,” she told the water, the town, the whole arranged marriage of valley and debt. “Show me what you kept.”

Full disclosure, printed large: this magazine is funded by Riposte Laboratories, a Kelowna outfit that counter-attacks waste — recycled-plastic injection molding and reclaimed-cell modular power. We share what we're building here, in the same pages, at the same volume as everyone else.

The deal, in writing: the Lab pays the printer and gets two pages. The editors answer to readers, not the funder. If that ever changes, the colouring page will let you know.

Q: My parents keep introducing me as their “roommate’s friend.” The roommate is my wife. Escalate or let it ride? — TIRED IN LAKE COUNTRY

A: Send them a fridge magnet of your wedding photo every month. No note. Bureaucracy respects witnesses and parents respect fridges. By magnet six you’ll be “the girls.” By ten, they’re paying for brunch.

Q: Is it a red flag if a date says Kelowna has “no culture”? — DEFENSIVE DOWNTOWN
